

STILL TALK OF SESSION HOURS

Different Views As To Time The Sessions Should Be Held Each Day, And Length.

WOULD GIVE JUDGE SALE A SALARY

Senator Whitehead Introduces Such A Measure In The Senate This Morning--Follows Out Work Of The County Board,

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE]

Madison, Wis., Jan. 22.—Changes in the processes of legislation are proposed in the Wisconsin senate and assembly which will make the coming session vastly different from those of the past. One great change has already been put into force, that of referring all bills, to a committee on revision, which has the duty of seeing to it that the proposed laws are in proper form to become statutes, and that there will not be needless provisions reenacted. This committee is also expected to classify the many bills offered and send them in bunches to the proper committees, so that all the bills involving the same subject shall be placed before the same committee at the same time for consideration.

An Entire Week

Another proposal that meets the approval of all members whose homes are far from the capital city is that the legislature remain diligently in session for three or four weeks and then take an adjournment for an entire week. The idea is to give the remotely resident members opportunity to go to their homes and attend to business affairs once a month. As it is now the legislature meets Tuesday morning and adjourns on Thursday evening over Sunday.

Chance to Leave

This gives opportunity to members who live in Milwaukee or the south half of the state to go to their homes and see to business and also visit their families, but members from the north half of the state have to remain over Sunday in this quiet town with little or nothing to do other than go to theatres, read papers and talk further this policy.

MARVELOUS GROWTH OF FARMERS' UNION THROUGHOUT SOUTH

One Million Progressive Tillers of the Soil Represented at Rally in Atlanta.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE]

Atlanta, Ga., Jan. 22.—One million progressive farmers throughout the South and West are represented at a grand rally begun in Atlanta today by the national directors, organizers, state presidents and other leaders of the Farmers' Educational and Cooperative Union. President C. S. Barrett called the gathering to order this morning in the assembly chamber of the state capitol. The general purpose of the meeting, as set forth in the official call, is to discuss matters affecting the welfare of the organization and to outline in a general way the plan of action for the coming year.

The reports of the several officers show that the past year was the most successful in the history of the organization. The figures contained in these reports show that the growth of the Farmers' Union in membership and influence has been nothing less than marvelous.

Less than five years ago the association was organized in Texas. It had but a handful of members in the beginning. Today it has a membership in the neighborhood of 1,000,000, covering every Southern state and spreading into Iowa, Kansas, Nebraska, Oregon, California, Illinois and other states of the North and West.

Its members declare that it has already accomplished what no other organization has ever been able to do—that is, it has the cotton situation of the United States well in hand and under the most thorough control. It is generally conceded that to the association's stand for 10-cent cotton is due more than anything else the fact that up to this time the average selling price of cotton has been far in excess of 10 cents. The efforts to control the cotton crop formed but a beginning of the great campaign contemplated by the Farmers' Union. It is believed that within a brief period it will be able to thoroughly control the marketing all agricultural products and largely eliminate the middlemen from the situation, enabling the farmer instead of the speculator to step in and control the markets.

HOLY JUMPERS' PRINT SHOP BURNED TODAY

Publishing Office of "Burning Bush" at Waukesha Destroyed, Entailing Loss of Ten Thousand.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE]

Waukesha, Wis., Jan. 22.—The plant of the "Burning Bush," the official Holy Jumpers' paper, burned this morning from an overheated furnace. There was no insurance. The loss is ten thousand dollars.

WABASH RIVER HAS MADE DEVASTATION

Breaking of the Levee Near Taylorville Has Inundated the Whole Country.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE]

Terre Haute, Ind., Jan. 22.—The breaking of the Wabash river levee a mile south of this city near the village of Taylorville has widened from fifteen feet last night to several hundred feet today, and the surrounding country for miles is inundated. The river is still rising. There are thousands of homeless people in the villages of Taylorville and West Terre Haute. The majority are in pitiable plight, with neither food nor clothing or shelter.

Whitehead's Bill

Senator Whitehead introduced a bill today to give the county judge of Rock county a $3,000 yearly salary in lieu of all fees. This amounts to about the same pay for the judge, but the county board abolished the fee system with respect to other offices, placing them on salaries, and Senator Whitehead's bill is merely to further this policy.

SEEKING NEW FIELD FOR MORE ACTIVITY

New York Ice Trust Plans to Compel Local Ice-Owners to Give Up.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE]

Milwaukee, Wis., Jan. 22.—The Amour ice plant at Paukeewa was purchased today by the Thomas interests of New York, who are forming a new western ice trust. The Milwaukee companies refused to sell and it is said Thomas got the Knickerbocker of Chicago and other plants surrounding completely all the local companies who won't sell out, and it will be a war to the finish. Thirty-five million dollars are involved.

RETAIL GROCERYMEET AT DALLAS

Pure Food Law, Parcels Post, and Trading Stamp Schemes on Program For Discussion.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE]

Dallas, Texas, Jan. 22.—Several hundred delegates are in attendance on the annual convention of the National Association of Retail Grocers of the United States which opened in Dallas today. Every section of the country is represented, and added interest is given the gathering by the holding of a mammoth pure food show in conjunction therewith. The association will be in session three days. The operation of the new pure food laws particularly as it affects the retailer, will be discussed in all its phases. The parcels post, desired amendments to the bankruptcy law, trading stamp schemes and other matters of paramount importance to the retail trade will be considered at length. Splendid entertainment has been provided for the visiting members of the association and the ladies who accompany them.

American Missionary Says Millions Are Starving to Death—Appeals for Help.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS]

New York, Jan. 22.—The American Bible Society with headquarters here received a cablegram from Rev. John Hykes, the agent of the organization for China, saying: "Notify all boards of the Shanghai Missionary association to urge an appeal for famine relief, through all churches. A million and a quarter of starving refugees have already flocked to the cities. In one district three million are destitute and many a million more are affected. Many deaths have occurred already, though the five months of suffering is only begun."

SENATOR SUTHERLAND AS SMOOT'S SPECIAL ADVOCATE

Tells The Senate He Is Not A Polygamist And Has Never Believed In It.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 22.—Senator Sutherland of Utah today came to the defense of his colleague, Senator Smoot of Utah, defending his right to retain his seat in the United States senate. Senator Smoot himself, said Senator Sutherland, had above reproach.

always insisted that the practice of polygamy should be abandoned; he had never been a polygamist, and not a line of testimony could be found which indicated he had ever advocated the practice of polygamy. He said Smoot's whole life has been clean and above reproach.

LIVE STOCK MEN DISCUSS RELATIONS WITH ROADS

National Convention Favors Lower Rates And Wants Transit Limitation Extended From 28 To 36 Hours.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE]

Denver, Colo., Jan. 22.—The tenth annual convention of the National Live Stock association, which began in this city today, is the largest in point of attendance ever held by the association. Leading stock men from Texas, Oklahoma, Montana, Wyoming, Colorado, the Dakotas, Nebraska and numerous other states filled the Broadview Theatre this morning when the gathering was called to order by President Murdo Mackenzie.

After the usual welcoming address had been made and responded to and the convention formally organized, Secretary T. W. Tomlinson read the official call for the gathering, which was in part as follows:

"The executive committee and officers of this association congratulate the members on the results achieved during 1906, especially in the passage of the railway rate bill, conferring on the Interstate Commerce Commission adequate power over rates, and also in the amendment to the Federal statutes extending the time limit in which live stock can be held on cars in transit from twenty-eight to thirty-six hours. Our association is now recognized as a great power in live stock matters and it has attained that position through a policy of conservatism and fairness."

The present convention will remain in session over tomorrow and it is possible the proceedings may run over a third day as more than the ordinary number of important matters are to be brought up for discussion and action.

Some of the principal subjects to receive attention are the cost of meat inspection, sanitation, better service from stock yards companies, the suits now pending before the Interstate Commerce Commission relative to certain live stock rates, and the extension of the European market for American live stock products.

The existing shortage of cars has hit the stockmen hard in certain sections of the country, and they are anxious that legal provision be made requiring the railroad companies to maintain their equipments and rolling stock so that a car famine will be come impossible.

Forest reserves is another subject that will receive more or less attention from the association. Gifford Pinchot, chief of the bureau of forestry, is here to confer with the live stock men and to listen to any complaints about the administration of the forest reserves. The cattlemen have some grievances left over, but they are fewer and of less serious nature than might have been expected.

A plan to divide the available public lands into districts and allot them for grazing purposes is being discussed among the delegates.

BIG BENEFIT FOR MANAGER CONRIED

Several Thousand Dollars Will be Cleared by Grand Opera Stars Who Donate Services.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE]

New York, Jan. 22.—One of the most remarkable aggregations of songbirds ever heard in this country will appear at the Metropolitan Opera House tonight in the testimonial performance to Henry Conried, the manager of the Metropolitan Grand Opera Company, who has been in poor health for some time. The production of Richard Strauss' "Salomé" will be the chief feature of the program. Olive Fremstad is to sing the title role, and Messrs. Van Rooy, Burrian, and Miss Marion Weed will take other parts. A concert will be given before the opera which will take place. All the seats in the opera house were sold several days ago at a premium and as all the famous artists have volunteered their services, it is expected the profit to Herr Conried will aggregate several thousand dollars.

Hints of Grand Jury.

Hints of indictment by a grand jury were handed out to Ald. John McGavock at the council meeting last night. The bill for about $75 which had been turned down at a previous meeting because it looked as if the alderman would profit by it came up again and brought out considerable criticism of the alderman for allowing it to be presented. He declared he had no monetary interest in the bill, but the alderman could not see it that way.

"THE RACKET"

MAYOR TO VETO
SALARY ORDER

PASSED BY THE CITY COUNCIL
LAST NIGHT.

MANDAMUS WRIT NEXT MOVE

City Fathers Petitioned Legislature to Repeal Special Act Relating to License Money in Rock County.

As predicted, the finance committee of the city council reported the usual salary list last evening, including $5 for Ald. Rudolph and $10 each for Aldermen W. W. Watt, W. H. Merritt, George Buchholz, and J. J. Sheridan, and all of the City Fathers voted for the adoption of the same, it is known, however, that Mayor Hutchinson will refuse to sign the order on the treasury—he made a definite statement to that effect during the recess—and the foregoing can be argued in the county or circuit court. The usual budget of bills were passed upon, and at the same instance of the highway committee the city clerk was instructed to draw orders on the treasurer in the sums of $72.23, payable from the Washington street improvement fund, to P. W. Ryan as the balance due, and $13.61 payable from the third ward fund to Thomas H. Edden to correct an error in the Oakland avenue grading assessment. The street assessment committee reported on the cost of the sewer flushing inlets and by the passage of orders transferring to the fund of district 10 the sums of $91.65 from district No. 11, $306.50 from district No. 12, and $122.17 from district 19; also the sum of $245.11 from district 5 fund to that of district 6, the expense of building them was pro-rated over all sections of the system benefited. The clerk was instructed to draw an order on the treasurer in favor of Harding & Nelson for $498.87 payable from sewer district No. 10 fund in part payment for the construction of a sewer in the said locality. Aldermen Brockhaus, Hager, and Rudolph were absent from the session.

Street Signs and Numbers

Chairman Fish of the Lighting committee recited some of the difficulties encountered in putting up the street signs. About two-thirds of the 727 have been placed and 70 more will be needed. He advocated the purchase at the rate of 50 cents apiece of about 400 brackets to be attached to the telephone poles and a representative of the American Sign Co. of Clyde, Ohio, who was present, explained the simple devices.

About 25 more poles will also be needed and the purchase of these, the brackets and the additional signs was authorized by the passage of a motion. They will be put in place by the street commissioner. The proposition of renumbering the houses was also brought up and the sign company representative exhibited some samples of adjustable residence numbers not unlike the street placards which they manufacture, and explained one method his company had of putting them up and collecting from the property-holders. Alderman Fish favored early action in this matter, but his colleagues deemed it wise to postpone definite action until a future meeting when all of the council members should be present.

Would Retain All License Money

Under a special act passed by the legislature in 1887 the county of Rock comes in for $50 of every $500 saloon license fee paid in the cities. The money goes into the poor relief fund and is a gratuity which the municipalities, particularly Janesville, have wearied of paying, inasmuch as it is believed that they furnish no more paupers in proportion to the county at large, and pay their proportionate share of the county tax. A resolution requesting and urging Hon. John M. Whitehead, state senator, and Hon. Pliny Norcross to use all due and reasonable means to secure at the present session of the legislature the introduction and passage of the Annex bill, an act to repeat chapter 47 of the laws of 1887, providing for the disposal of license money in the county of Rock, was passed by unanimous vote.

Mayor Mentioned Bad Walks

The city treasurer's December report and a statement from that official and the mayor that they had sold the special Washington street improvement bonds to Ann Fathers for $727.87, with $18.44 premium, she being the highest bidder, were received and approved. Mayor Hutchinson called the attention of the council to defective walks, recently under water, in front of lot 8, block 30, South Main street; on the west of South Main street from S. Second to S. Third street; and in front of the Jenkins estate, lots 4 to 11, block 1, on Milton avenue and asked the street commissioner, the city attorney, and the alderman from the third ward to take immediate action with regard thereto. Ald. Watt said that he had already made an effort to have the S. Main street walks fixed but that his colleague, Ald. Brockhaus, had not co-operated. Ald. Fish called attention to the condition of the walk in front of Carle's warehouse. Ald. Buchholz of the license committee asked for further time for the consideration of the application of E. C. Lynch for permission to operate a neat and well-conducted stationary lunch-wagon at a point where it would not interfere with traffic and offering to pay the city $100 a year for the privilege. The city attorney was instructed to investigate the proposition and be prepared to give an opinion on the city's powers in this matter at the next meeting.

About Forty Couples Fell in with the Spirit of the Lively Music Last Evening.

About forty couples attended the delightful dancing party given by the Inning Club at East Side, I. O. O. F. hall last evening and the splendid program of up-to-the-minute musical numbers discussed by Roy Carter and A. C. Berkert, assisted on one or two occasions by a vocal and instrumental sextette crowded off the floor by the "stags" was the subject of flattering comment on every hand. The "recessional" was played at 12:30. Among the visitors present were M. Ross of Chicago and Miss Donald Seals of Birmingham, Alabama.

GOOD WORK BEING DONE
BY ASSOCIATED CHARITIES

Demand for Clothing Is a Heavy One and Citizens Are Again Urged to Respond.

Meetings of the Associated Charities are better attended than ever before and the interest taken makes it very encouraging to those who have worked for its success for years past. They have taken hold of charity work in earnest and are giving personal attention to the calls that are being made daily. The report of the secretary, Mrs. J. L. Ford, made at the meeting yesterday, showed that some ten families have been visited and relieved this month; wood and coal have been furnished four families. A home was found for one man and a nurse and attendant for another. A number of families were furnished with food and bedding. All of this work is done by the ladies. They need children's clothing, and underwear for both women and children. Nearly every family can pick up a few pieces and they will prove very acceptable. Look over that big trunk or go to the clothes press and pull out something you can spare and send it to Heimstreet's drugstore, and it will make some one warm and happy. The Associated Charities wish to acknowledge the receipt of one hundred and nine dollars from the young ladies who gave the charity party last month, and thank them on behalf of the many to whom it means new shoes, a warm fire or something to eat. The next meeting will be held at Heimstreet's drugstore Monday, February 4th.

With Which He Has Been Identified for 25 years—Stock sold to His Brother, F. F. Lewis.

S. B. Lewis has disposed of his interest in the Lewis Knitting Co. to his brother, F. F. Lewis, and retired from the business.

Plans for the future have not, as yet, assumed definite form and for the present we'll take a much needed rest. It is his expectation, if possible, to remain in Janesville, with the business of which he has been closely identified for two decades and where he and his family enjoy the highest esteem and regard of a multitude of friends.

Twenty-five years ago the Lewis brothers gave up the occupation in which they were then engaged and entering into a co-partnership with their father under the firm name of F. F. Lewis & Sons, engaged in the manufacture of knitwear at Lewiston, Wisconsin. They were the originators of ribbed underwear, and the hosiery goods, so well known in the markets a few years ago, were imitations of their product. If in the beginning there were no machines to be had which were large enough to make these garments and it was necessary to knit in strips which were subsequently sewed together.

At the outset eight hands were employed. Mr. Lewis, Sr., lived but a year after the co-partnership was formed and after his death the business of the company was moved to Portage where, the output having been placed in the hands of the merchant trade, it grew so rapidly that at the end of four years larger quarters became a necessity. This need brought about the removal to Janesville, where the concern was located for a time in the Jeffris building back of the old postoffice. At the end of a year a stock company was formed under the firm name of the Lewis Knitting Co.

The business has grown steadily, the goods finding favor with the great mercantile houses of the world, and

Is Like Trying to Get Rid of Dandruff Without Hericide.

Did you ever see any one trying to wash themselves without soap or water?

If you did what would you say of him?

It is every bit as foolish to try to get rid of dandruff and to prevent baldness by feeding the germs which cause it, with Cantharides, a Selenine, Glycerine and similar substances which form the principal ingredients of most so-called hair growers.

..Forty Years Ago..

Janesville Daily Gazette, Tuesday January 22, 1867.—Handsome Contribution—Mrs. Emma Fuller who circulated a subscription paper for the benefit of Miss Adda Eastwick, who lost her clothing in the Hyatt House, informs us that she collected $56.51 and has paid it over. It will prove of decided benefit to the recipient, no doubt.

For the Paris Exposition.—We were shown this morning a case of goods put up for the Paris Exposition by our enterprising townsmen, Messrs. Tallman & Collins, manufacturers of perfumery, which we believe will rank among the most unique and beautiful specimens of toilet goods that will be sent from any city in this country. In the first place is to be noticed the elegant black walnut case made from an original design by Nettleton & Jacks, and French polished by Mr. H. F. Horwick, with front of best plate glass. In this nice piece of mechanism, which is of itself worthy a place in the exposition, are arranged the following articles:kins of perfume for handkerchiefs, 38; colognes, 8; powders, 10; sachets, 8; hair oils, 8; court plasters, 4; Tallman's adhesive powder; and 2 bottles of Egyptian Calis, with the lettering burned and burnished on the bottle. All of these articles are manufactured from the best of materials and put up in the neatest and most attractive form. The case and its contents reflect great credit upon our home manufacturers and will astonish many an old fogey of the "Old World," who thinks that Wisconsin is still the retreat of buffaloes and Indians. The cost of the raw material in this contribution is $225.

A Large Sale of Property.—Jackman & Smith's mill, with the buildings and grounds from the mill front to River street, and the land fronting on River street now occupied by Mr. Schutt as a lumber yard, was sold today to Messrs. C. A. Alden, John Clark and Horace Dewey. Messrs. Alden & Clark are now running the big mill and have a lease of that property for three years from the present time.

NORTHWEST IS SNOWBOUND

HOUSES AND BARNS BURIED AND RAILROADS TIED UP.

North Dakota Especially Is Suffering

No Trains Get Through in Three Days.

St. Paul, Jan. 22.—Nothing but snow, deep and trackless, can be perceived over the wide areas of North Dakota. Snow is everywhere; piled in drifts of unprecedented depth, covering the houses and barns, swirling in vast clouds over the plains of white waste; that is, all there is over miles and miles of land. Houses and habitations of all kinds are, in some cases, completely covered and the severe blizzards of Saturday night have piled up banks in every place where the snow could get a footing, leaving other places almost bare.

During the lull just before the storm all of the railroads bent every effort to bring trains filled with coal and provisions to the stricken towns, and the Great Northern, especially, has moved nothing else but supplies to alleviate any possible suffering.

Now, however, the railroads are fearing the worst. Every line in the storm-stricken state is completely at the mercy of the elements. Not a train on any of the lines has arrived in this city for three days, and, while some of the officials claim that they will get some through trains in Tuesday, none of the branch lines will be in working order again for a week.

WISCONSIN WEATHER FORECAST

Fair tonight, colder in southeastern portion, Wednesday fair and warmer.

THE COUNTRY'S TRAFFIC PROBLEM

Have we as a country not come to the parting of the ways in our transportation problem?

The report of Lieut. Col. Symons of the Corps of Engineers, War department, on the matter of improving the navigable rivers and lakes in their relation to the canal system of New York states that there will be great economy in considering jointly the larger problem of improving our internal waterways in order to meet the needs of commerce. By the testimony of railroad men there is no doubt a need of transportation facilities of much larger capacity than exist at present in many parts of the country. Are not waterways part of the remedial program, says the New York World.

If railroads were relieved of much of the coarse freight which wears them out and brings them a comparatively low rate of revenue, there would be much better opportunity for them to carry more remunerative freight to advantage. Has not the time come for a division of labor between waterways on the one hand and railroads on the other? Can the railways be expected to do everything all the time? Trolley lines are now taking part of their traffic in the handling of short distance passenger business, not only on suburban but also in interurban lines.

The provision for low cost freight by water would help to enlarge the geographical scope of industry by the cheaper assemblage of raw materials. Are not the Pittsburgh commercial people right, after all, when they say that their industrial future is closely identified with the waterway from the lower lakes to the headwaters of the Ohio? Traffic congestion makes all of these questions, including the waterway from Chicago to St. Louis, part of the program to which the advocates of this branch of public improvements are giving much thought and attention.

Are not more and better waterways part of a permanent solution? The house river and harbor committee has proposed co-operation of federal, state and municipal authorities in bearing the expenses of improvement. Why not have the same rule apply to construction as in public highway improvement, where the local and state governments share the outlay jointly?

It has been suggested that Janesville have another Fourth of July celebration this year. Business men are talking of it, and if anything is to be done now is the time to decide, so that the hard work can be done early in the year and not rushed at the end.

It will either be the double tracks from Harvard to Evansville this year or the construction of the new assorting yards of the North-Western and, perhaps both. Either or both would boom Janesville with the interurban to Madison also starting.

Secretary Root has taken no official notice of the peppery Jamaican Governor's insult. Perhaps this is the right course, but it makes one all-fired hot under the collar to have an Englishman play the snob and not be rebuked for it.

The voters of the city can make the city government what they wish for the next two years: A wide open town or a closed town. It is up to them at the coming spring election.

New York waits with interest the Thaw murder trial. White has been dead over a half year, but the crime is still unavenged and the prisoner is yet to be tried.

President Roosevelt said at a banquet in Washington last week that we should be good and be kind to our neighboring countries, but have a big navy to be good and kind and impress them of our kindness.

Cold weather makes the trains late and consequently some people grumble at the cool winds that are blowing contagion away from congested localities.

Now Alderman Fish wants to re-number the entire city; have more confusion than already exists from change in the street names.

Clinton papers can please take note. F. R. Helmer has been named postmaster of your town. This comes in the list of postoffice appointments made Monday.

Zero weather and still they say the ice is still too thin to cut. Holy Moses, how cold will it have to be before that ice crop can be harvested?

It would appear as though Mr. Tillman has bitten off a bigger bite than he can mastigate when he attacks Spooner and his colleague, Carmack.

LeRoy, while he was defeated for the speakership, promises to make himself heard for a small man, in the present legislature.

If some of these reformers could be captured and given a good dose of castor oil it would benefit the country at large.

Railway wrecks are so frequent now that they scarcely excite any comment. Just a shudder—that is all.

Madison gets into the dispatches pretty frequently of late with some court trial or prank of the students.

This cold snap may freeze up some of the chances of the Mayoralty candidates. Such things have happened.

Janesville men get to the forefront in many walks of life. Why not push Janesville along at the same time?

Just a trifle more snow, Mr. Weatherman, so the youngsters can use those sleds they got Christmas.

Janesville is a good name to conjure with when talking of the great benefits of the community.

Milwaukee appears to have a galaxy of crime and civic disturbances that would be hard to beat.

The council have voted themselves the five dollars after all. The next thing is to collect it.

This talk of prolonging the session of the legislature appears to be based on good grounds.

SHURTLEFF CO. TO USE ICE NO MORE

Portion of Factory Being Remodeled For Installation of Refrigerating Plant.

Contractor George M. Barringe has commenced work at the ice cream factory of the Shurtleff Company on Park street and is remodeling a portion of the building, preparatory to the installation of a refrigerating plant. A part of the "cream room" is being partitioned off and in this the iceless freezing apparatus will be placed. The machinery has been ordered from the Creamery Package company of Chicago and representatives of that concern will install it and put it in running order. Ammonia will be the principal material used in freezing and ice, except that used for packing cans to be delivered or shipped, will no longer be needed in the factory. All ice cream can be stored in this refrigerating room, the "carrying" portion having a capacity of one thousand gallons. Though this change is costing the company in the neighborhood of three thousand dollars, much money will be saved on the ice bill and Wisconsin's eccentric winters will no longer be depended upon. The work at the factory will be completed in March, when the ice cream season opens.

TO WRITE ON FRONT OF THE POSTAL CARD

Postoffice Department Will Permit This Custom After the First of March.

According to notices sent out from Washington, Janesville tourists can write on both sides of the souvenir postal cards, after the first of next March if they have so much to say to their friends they can not get it all on one. This order does not apply to the government postal cards, which can be secured at any post office for one cent. The ruling was made as a result of the action of the universal postal conference in Rome last fall. A large number of private postal cards have a picture on the back which covers it complete. For this reason the front of the cards are divided into two sections and after March 1, writing on the left one-half will be permissible. The right one-half will be still reserved for address only.

Order of Department

The announcement is as follows: "The universal postal convention recently concluded in the city of Rome provides for the admission to the mails exchanged between all countries of the postal union, on and after Oct. 1, 1907, of post cards bearing written messages upon the left half of the front of the cards, and as such cards are now admitted, at the postal rate applicable to postal clerks, both of the domestic mails of certain principal countries of the United States and to the mails exchanged between them.

"Therefore, from the date of this order, post cards conforming to the provisions of the Roman convention, when mailed in foreign countries and fully prepaid by postage stamps, shall be delivered to addresses in the United States without additional charge for postage; and on and after March 1, 1907, such cards bearing written message upon the left half of the front, the right being reserved for the address and postmark, when fully prepaid by postage stamps at the rate applicable to post cards shall be admitted both to the domestic and international mails of this country, and treated as post cards.

"Order No. 1047, of June 28, 1906, and provisions of regulations inconsistent herewith are hereby revoked."

Coupon Order Forms

The practice has grown up of placing in connection with advertisements in periodicals and magazines a coupon or order form to be filled out and used in sending a message back to the advertiser; or a coupon wholly or in part requiring to be filled out but also for the purpose of return as a message or evidence of some kind to the advertiser.

As a general rule these coupons are to be detached. The post office department at Washington has ruled that such blanks are not permissible parts of a periodical, when designed as a means for future correspondence. As such they constitute merchandise and are subject to that rule.

Congress May Act

Congress coupons providing no space for signature or insertion, and advertisements intended to be detached, are third class matter and are subject to a rate of one cent for each two ounces or fraction thereof. The advertiser uses the coupon as a letter to the recipient of the magazine.

However, in view of the prevalence and the desire to avoid unnecessary hardships, inconveniences and loss to the publishers the department at Washington has ruled such practice will not be interfered with before March 4, 1907. This is the day when the present session of congress expires by limitation. It is possible that by that time congress will have so changed the statutes in relation to second class or mail matter as to make express provisions for the treatment of detachable coupons and the like.

When Bradley came out of the kitchen after the "burglar" had made his confession he shook hands with Captain Erl, bade the latter a laughing good night, and went up to his chamber. It was a long time before he fell asleep. He heard a steady hum of conversation from the old maids' room and knew the sisters were going over the astonishing events of the evening. Once Miss Temple came to his door to ask in a whisper if he knew just how old Captain Titcomb was. "Oh, about forty-eight or fifty," he answered, smiling to himself.

He had fallen into a doze and was dreaming a confused medley in which the sisters and he were chasing Sam Hammond from one room to another, while Gus locked the doors in front of them, when Clara's scream of "Fire!" rang through the house. He sat up in bed, not sure whether the cry was real or a part of the dream.

But the next moment he heard footsteps on the stairs. "Fire!" screamed Clara, rushing through the hall. "Oh, Brad, get up quick! The Diving Belle's all on fire!"

He was cool, surprisingly cool; as it seemed to him, when he thought of it afterward. His first move was to run to the window, open it and leap out. At first he saw nothing but the black night, the stars and the lights on the horizon. He noticed, too, how salty sweet the wind smelled as it blew from the flats at the foot of the hill. Then he saw the puff of flame on the schooner in the harbor.

Barefooted, bareheaded, dressed only in his trousers and shirt, but struggling into his jacket as he ran, he sprang down the stairs. The sisters caught at his arm and cried something or other, but he did not heed them. Clara called after him that Captain Titcomb had gone to the schooner. He stopped for an instant to ask her to rouse some of the neighbors and send them to the wharf. As he came out into the yard he noticed vaguely that there was a light in one of the rooms of the Baker cottage.

He took the same route that his partner had taken, but made better time. It was evident that the fire had been seen by others, for as he crossed the bridge, the schoolhouse bell began to ring. It came to him like a flash, but too late, that he might have saved half the distance by taking one of the skiffs in the inlet and rowing straight out past the point.

There was a shouting crowd on the hill above the bulge, but he could see no boats about the Diving Belle and wondered why. Part of the crowd on the hill came running to meet him.

"Who's that?" shouted some one—Ira Sparrow, he thought.

Bradley did not answer. "Who is it?" cried Ira again. "Stop!"

The junior partner did not stop. "Squealer!" Wixou got in his way and caught at his jacket. Bradley tripped him up, jumped the rail fence by the roadside and ran across the fields. He heard "Squealer" shouting his name.

The wharf was empty. Not a man was there. He reached the stringpiece, caught at the painter of one of the doles alongside, and, pulling the boat toward him, jumped in. Luckily the oars were lying on the thwarts. He picked them up and, with his knife, cut the painter.

And then he heard the captain's voice calling to him from the hill: "Brad, Brad! Don't go nigh her for your life! The dynamite's aboard!"

Like his partner, Bradley had forgotten the dynamite. Mechanically he put the oars in the rowlocks and sat motionless. The captain had stopped shouting. It was very still. He heard the bell ringing in the distance and the gurgle of the tide among the piles under the wharf. A whiff of smoke from the Diving Belle blew across his face, and he turned and looked at the schooner.

He remembered reading in the Boston Herald a month or so before of a wrecking vessel that had caught on fire off Long Island somewhere. She, too, had dynamite on board, and her skipper and the mate had saved her by throwing the explosive overboard. But they were on deck when the fire started. He looked at his own vessel, the schooner that he and the captain had longed for and worked for and potted like a baby. Then he set his teeth and began rowing.

The crackle of burning timber was plain as he scrambled over the Diving Belle's rail. The flames were pouring up from under the covering of the main hatch, and the smoke was rolling thick from the cabin companion. He would have given anything for an ax, but the only one on board was by the wood box in the galley below. He caught up the boat hook that was in its race by the bulkhead and ran to the hatch.

He put the point of the hook under the heavy cover and began prying the latter loose. It gave a little, slipped back and then pulled over the cleats. With the hook he got a firm grip upon its edge and turned it over with a clatter. The smoke belched up in a cloud, but as it cleared he felt upon his knees and peered below.

The fire was almost quidships, among some loose planks and an empty tar barrel. These were bursting fiercely, and the beams of the deck were blazing above them. But the dynamite chest was farther forward, beyond the bulkhead, which was only beginning to burn, and he could see there was just a chance of reaching too, was gone. "We'll have to swim!" cried Bradley. "Jump quick! She's going to blow up!" Sam sobbed in sheer terror. "I can't make it!" he screamed. "I'm too weak. I'll drown."

"You've got to make it. Jump! I'll keep close behind you."

Hammond caught at a shroud, stepped upon the bulwark and stood there, turning a white face first toward the shore and then back at his companion. There was a muffled rumble from the hold. The bulkhead had fallen.

"Jump!" shouted Bradley. "Jump!"

Sam threw up his arms and leaped from the stern. Bradley cast one glance over the poor Diving Belle, ran to the rail by the forecastle and dived into the water.

At that moment, before his head appeared above the surface, there came a dull roar from the schooner's hold. She rocked like a rowboat among breakers. A lame burst from her hatches and forecastle and strained to the top of her forecastle, every rope of which caught fire. Her entire bow was a great torch that dipped now this way, now that.

Hammond, swimming for his life, yelled with fright. Bradley, caught in the waves made by the rocking of the Diving Belle, was for a moment unable to make any headway. Vaguely he wondered why he had not been killed. And then the forecastle swung back in the foregrip snapped from its burning tackle, shot out into the air and fell, striking him on the forehead and fell, striking him on the forehead.

"Help!" the voice came up through the smoke. "It's me—Hammond!"

The junior partner started back. "Hammond?" he repeated. "Hammond?" And then in a changed voice, "What are you doing aboard here?"

"I came after my things. I forgot about the spring lock. Quick! Oh, quick!"

Captain Titcomb on the hill had fought and struggled and pleaded to be allowed to go to his partner's aid. But Captain Taylor said, "Better one than two," and most of the others agreed with him. "Squealer!" Wixou was going through the crowd, telling all who would listen that if he had not had some fellows at his house "settin' up" playing cards the fire would not have been discovered. As the blaze grew brighter and Bradley could be seen running about the schooner's deck, Alvin Bearce volunteered to go with his skipper and attempt a rescue, but they would not let him try. In whispers people were asking one another how long it would last.

When Hammond appeared on deck there was a great commotion. No one knew who it was. But when he stood upon the rail, with the fire behind him, a dozen shouted his name. Captain Titcomb shouted it and swore. A moment later came the explosion.

Fifty men started for the wharf then, but the captain was far in the lead. He leaped into a dory and pushed off. The harbor was almost as light as day. In the center of the light the two figures in the water were splashing silhouettes.

And suddenly the captain, rowing frantically, was aware that another boat was nearer the schooner than his own. A small skiff, rowed by a bare-headed girl, had come from behind the pilot and was speeding with long, sure strokes toward the swimmers.

Hammond saw it. "Help!" he shouted, waving one arm. "Help! I'm drowning! Save me!"

The skiff was almost upon him. He reached out to grasp its side. But the rower, though she turned and looked directly into his face, did not stop. She kept straight on, past him.

And Captain Titcomb as he seized Sam Hammond by the coat collar saw Gus Baker, lean from her staff and drag to its low gunwale the helpless form of Bradley Nickerson.

Then, with a hiss and wrapped in a great white robe of steam, the Diving Belle dove to the bottom of the harbor.

"Well have to swim! Jump quick!"

the speaking enemy who had set her on fire and who was responsible for all his troubles—which? To force that cabin door meant that the flames in the hold would have time to burn through the bulkhead and then—

He heaved a long sigh, and with that sigh he said goodby to the Diving Belle. He turned and rushed to the main hatch.

The prisoner in the cabin heard him go and screamed choking curses after him. But Bradley had gone only to get the boat hook. He came back with it and began the attack upon the door. That door was built of tough wood, almost new, and the captain's lock was new also. The boat hook only tore off splinters and chips. Finally the boar broke just where the iron joined the handle.

Sam had ceased to yell and beg his rescuer to hurry. His cries changed to coughs and strangling moans. Then he was silent altogether. Bradley, desperate, threw down the broken boat hook and ran about the deck hunting, by the light of the fire, for something heavy, something that would break that lock. He picked up the stout beam, reinforced with iron, that they slung over the vessel's fore quarter when they hoisted heavy chains on board.

It was so clumsy that he could scarcely carry it, but he stepped back by the wheel to get a start and, running forward, threw it against the door. The double oak panels cracked lengthwise. Three times he hurled the battering ram, with his own weight behind it. At the fourth attempt the door burst inward and he fell on his face.

"Sam!" he shouted. "Sam, come on!" But Hammond did not answer. Shutting his eyes and holding his breath, Bradley descended the cabin stairs. Hammond was lying unconscious at their foot. The junior partner dragged him to the deck and away from the smoke. Then he shook and pounded him savagely. After a bit the fellow opened his eyes and gasped.

Then Bradley left him and ran to the main hatch. One glance showed him that the schooner was doomed and that the dynamite might explode at any moment. The thin bulkhead was a wall of flame and was shaking like a sheet of paper in the fierce draft. Black smoke, powdered with sparks, was vomiting from the forecastle. The Diving Belle was on fire from stem to stern.

Hammond yelled wildly from the after rail. "The dory's gone!" he shouted. "My dory's gone! Where's yours?"

Bradley had not stopped to fasten the dory when he boarded the schooner, and the boat had drifted away. Hammond, half drunk when he left the wharf, had buoied the knot with which his dory was fastened, and that,

TILLMAN IS FUNNY AND APOLOGIZES

CALLS OUT RETORTS FROM SPOONER AND CARMACK.

LIVELY DAY IN SENATE

Compromise Resolution on Browns-ville Goes Over Till Tuesday—House Passes Political Purity Bill.

Washington, Jan. 22.—Few features of the spectacular were missing from the proceedings of the senate Monday. The Brownsville affair was the subject of controversy, and the day began with the announcement of a compromise resolution which brought Republican and Democratic senators together on the basis of ordering an investigation of the facts of the affray without bringing into question the authority of the president to dismiss the negro troops.

The resolution was submitted to and approved by the president at a conference Sunday.

When the "harmony" testimonials were all in, Senator Tillman took the floor and delivered a speech in reply to the recent criticism of himself by Senator Spooner. This speech began with a satirical picture of the senate as a minstrel show, which Mr. Tillman later said was his first and last attempt to be "funny," an attempt which at its conclusion brought a stinging denunciation from Senator Carmack in resentment of allusions to him.

Senator Tillman Apologizes.

This was preceded by a serious reply from Senator Spooner on the attitude taken by Mr. Tillman on the race problem, all finally resulting in a session of nearly two hours behind closed doors.

The secret session was followed by a brief open one in which Mr. Tillman made a profuse apology to Mr. Carmack, to all senators whom he had brought into his "first essay in the line of humor," and finally to the entire senate. "I very much regret that I ever undertook to be funny, and I will never do so again more," Mr. Tillman then withdrew all he had said in his "funny essay" and said it would not appear in the Record.

This apology was at once accepted by Mr. Carmack, who regretted he had questioned the motives of his friend, and he too, withdrew words he had uttered in protest.

Goes Over to Tuesday.

Mr. Foraker made a final attempt to get a vote on his resolution, but objection was made, and the matter will be taken up Tuesday, immediately after morning business has been disposed of. Mr. Carmack remarked jocularly that there were not more than 15 or 20 senators desiring to talk, and Mr. Foraker, feigning seriousness, retorted hotly that the senator need not think the Democratic side of the chamber could monopolize the talking. Mr. Carmack explained that he was only trying to be funny, that it was his first attempt and he would never make another. As senators were laughing heartily over this parting salutation, adjournment was taken at 6:15 o'clock.

During the entire day, the galleries of the senate were crowded to their capacity, and the debate was also listened to by seemingly a majority of the members of the house of representatives, who occupied all available seats and standing room in the chamber.

Political Purity Bill Passed.

Discussion of the senate bill to prohibit corporations from making money contributions in connection with political elections took the form of campaign stump debate in the house, but this did not prevent the passage of the measure. Democrats, under the lead of Messrs. Williams of Mississippi, Robinson of Arkansas and Hardwick of Georgia, criticised the alleged activity of Republican National Chairman Cortelyou during the last presidential campaign in soliciting funds from corporations.

Mr. Mann, of Illinois, opposed the bill on the ground that corporations should be permitted to contribute to election expenses if rich individuals were to do so, and he asserted that the effect of the bill would be to keep poor men out of office. The Democrats applauded a question by Mr. Williams as to whether anyone doubted President Roosevelt's ability to bring about a return of contributions by insurance companies "if he exerted his great power, influence and popularity."

Mr. Robinson replied it is a well-known fact that the Republican chairman has been promoted in office, and he had not been asked to make restitution of the funds "taken from widows and orphans."

The house pronounced unanimously in favor of enlarging and making more efficient the field of coast artillery.

A bill was passed authorizing the secretary of commerce and labor to investigate and report upon the "industrial, social, moral, educational and physical condition of women and children workers in the United States."

Giant Mail Order Concerns Are Sapping Country of Its Wealth.

SMALLER TOWNS CRUSHED

By Assisting in the Centralization of Wealth, Patrons of These Institutions Contribute to Their Own Injury.

(Copyright, 1906, by Alfred C. Clark.)

Every year millions upon millions of dollars find their way from the towns, villages and rural districts of the country to the coffers of the mail order houses in the cities, and go to the upbuilding of enormous institutions in the centers of population. Naturally, the sources from which the contributions are made suffer accordingly.

Figures ever tell a better story than words. Here are figures which tell a story so stupendous that its full significance cannot be grasped in a moment, but the mere sight of which are awe inspiring:

In the year 1905 two mail order houses, located in Chicago, did a business amounting in round numbers to $80,000,000. In the year 1904 these same concerns did a business of about $62,000,000, a gain of $18,000,000 or nearly 30 per cent, in a single year being thus exhibited.

These figures represent the sale last year of one dollar's worth of merchandise for every man, woman and child in the country by two catalogue houses alone, and those operating from the same central point. Dozens more of varying size and importance are operating all over the country from coast to coast and from border to border. A fact not generally known is that hundreds of concerns throughout the country which now are doing business through the regular trade channels are awaiting only a parcels post law to unloose literature, already prepared in many instances, which would project them into the mail order field, and this does not take into account the hundreds and perhaps thousands of entirely new mail order concerns which inevitably would spring into existence under such friendly auspices.

The two Chicago institutions referred to, already occupying immense buildings, found themselves cramped for room. One of them expended not less than $1,000,000, and probably more, for a new home. The other lately has secured a new location and also will expend at least $1,000,000 for an immense new building.

Anyone who will reflect even casually on the subject must become impressed that the influence of the mail order business is toward the centralization of wealth, and how enormous a part it is playing in this direction will be understood from a second glance at the figures which have been given above.

The Puzzle Solved.

Some time ago a merchant in Marblehead, Mass., was discovered in his store at a very late hour, and in replying to inquiries, he said:

"My confidential clerks is missing."

"And what of it?"

"Why, I'm looking over the books, but they seem to be all right."

"Have you counted your cash?"

"Yes; and it is correct to a dollar."

"Looked over your bank book?"

"I have, and it is satisfactory. That's the puzzle, you see. He's skipped, and I can't make out what for."

"Boen home since noon?"

"No."

"Perhaps he's eloped with your wife."

He hurried home, and found this to be the case.

UTTERS CORNERS.

Utters Corners, Jan. 21.—Mrs. Wm. Bright died at her home in Ft. Atkinson this morning and although her many friends here have been expecting the end for some time the news came as a shock. Ellen Waters grew from girlhood to womanhood here and by her pleasant and cheerful disposition won the love and esteem of all with whom she came in contact. When only a little girl she was deprived of a mother's love and care by the death of Mr. Bright six years ago was the only housekeeper her father had.

About one year ago her health began to fail and all that medical aid and loving hands could do was of no avail, as that dread disease, consumption, had secured too firm a hold to be overcome. She leaves to mourn her untimely death a husband, two young children, a father, two brothers and a host of friends.
